

Where to go?

VICTORIA HARBOUR

Experience Hong Kong's Victoria harbour, one of the most impressive natural harbours in the world by Day or Night. Board in the morning and see Hong Kong's beautiful skyline from the water and watch the firing of the Noon Day Gun in Causeway Bay typhoon shelter. Or join us at night for an evening cruise where you can enjoy a fabulous dinner onboard while sipping champagne and experiencing the spectacular Symphony Of Lights display, the World's Largest Permanent Light and Sound Show.

CHEUNG SHA WAN, LANTAU

Lantau's Cheung Sha Wan is a mighty two-mile-long stretch of sandy shore; in fact, the name means 'long sand' in Cantonese. The upper beach is completely undeveloped and you are guaranteed solitude on a weekday. The lower beach is a more fun place with a handful of well-regarded beachfront restaurants. Tian Tan Buddha, also known as the Big Buddha located at Ngong Ping, is a 10-minute cab ride away from Cheung Sha beach.

TAI LONG WAN AND LONG KE WAN

Practically undeveloped, Tai Long Wan and Long Ke Wan are Hong Kong's gems. Concealed in deep Sai Kung these beaches with soft, white sand and pristine water, reminiscent more of Thailand than Hong Kong. The beaches are famous among hikers and surfers for its difficult hiking trail and waves.

SAI KUNG

Sai Kung town centre acts as a gateway to its vast country parks, unspoiled nature and immaculate beaches, but the town centre — serving as a home to many — buzzes with activity. Be sure to sample some of the seafood from the plethora of Chinese restaurants lining the waterfront.

SOK KWU WAN, LAMMA

A modest town and fishing pier, Sok Kwu Wan nestles on the eastern front of Lamma Island. Aside from the sumptuous fresh marine food on offer, the town also hosts a Tin Hau temple, a moderate but rewarding hike inland from the shore.

SOKO ISLANDS

The Soko Islands are a group of islands in Hong Kong. The group consists of Tai A Chau, Siu A Chau and several smaller nearby islands, in the south-westernmost waters of the territory, to the southwest of Lantau Island. Now largely uninhabited, the islands formerly accommodated a refugee camp for Vietnamese boat people. The Sokos have the finest, softest sand around, they're also home to the Chinese white dolphin and various other types of coral and marine life.

PO TOI ISLANDS

The Po Toi Islands are often forgotten when it comes to planning a weekend getaway. With hiking trails and seafood restaurants scattered across the three islands, Po Toi makes for a refreshing retreat.

“ Thanks Saffron, the evening harbour cruise was truly a wonderful experience. From the fun of being on the harbour to see the amazing skyline, the great food and the magnificent Junk to sail on. I cannot recommend this highly enough and would say to anyone if you do nothing else on your HK trip make sure you do this.

Chris King ”

“ Thank you Saffron team, we had a magnificent day out on the water on Huan. Big thanks to the staff onboard for their great service.

Claudia Ball ” “ Great food and drinks and fantastic views of Hong Kong Island from Victoria harbour. We all had a great time, thank you Saffron.

Luk Bedeer ”

“ Thank you Saffron Cruises, I never thought Hong Kong was so green and beautiful. Our trip on Peppermint to Sai Kung Tai Long Wan beach was amazing: pristine water and fantastic beach. Highly recommended.

David Green ”
